PRISONERS IN NUN'S DRESS.

WOMEN ARRESTED AS IMPOSTORS MAN TAKEN WITH THEM.

Cathedral Clergyman Wrote to Naples About Them and Informed the Authorities That They Are Not Sisters of the Perpetual Adoration Order.

Two women, one young and the other middle aged, dressed in the garb of nuns, were arrested yesterday afternoon by Chief Mendicancy Officer James Forbes of the Charity Organization Society, charged with violating section 587 of the Penal Code, which makes it a felony to collect money en the false pretense that it is collected for a charitable or benevolent purpose. Forbes alleges that the women, posing as Sisters of the Order of Perpetual Adoration, are not connected with any order.

The arrests were made on warrants issued vesterday by Magistrate McAvoy in the Morrisania police court. The prisoners describe themselves as Mary Adele, 28 years old and Mary Agnes, 52 years old. They were arrested at 409 East Twenty-ninth street, where also was living Hugo Germais, 23 years old, who represented himself as the brother of Mary Adele. The man was arrested too, charged with being an accomplice of the women. Mr. Forbes declares that Ge mais is not related to them. The three prisoners were locked up last night in the East Thirty-fifth street station. They will be arraigned before Magistrate McAvoy this morning.

Nearly a year ago the actions of the two women were brought to the attention of the Rev. Dr. Gherardo Ferrante of St. Patrick's Cathedral, who looks after many Italian cases. T e women at the time were representing that they were members of the Order of Perpetual Adoration, and that they had been expelled from Italy on account of religious troubles there.

Dr. Ferrante wrote to the Cardinal Archbishop of Naples. The Cardinal caused an investigation to be made and later reported to Dr. Ferrante that the women were undoubtedly impostors.

Dr. Ferrante sent for the women. They admitted to him their wrongdoing. He gave them a week to get out of the country or as an alternative to be arrested. They decided to get out.

That was the last heard of the women until about a month ago. The Charity Organization society had been informed of the case by Dr. Ferrante and had kept an eye out for the women. Nearly a month ago the Society learned that the women were again collecting money. Agent Van-Zand was detailed to investigate.

VanZand has been following the women for several days. It was their practise, he reported, to go into a store or saloon dressed as nuns and hold out their hands for alms. If any one asked for information before contribution one of the women would shake her head and say:

"No understan' Italiano." If by chance the women were addressed in Italian they declared that they were French or of some other nationality. Yesterday VanZand followed them about The Bronx. When he decided that he had sufficient evidence he sent for Mr. Forbes and the warrant was secured.

"We had to go very slowly in the case," said Mr. Forbes last night. "In such a matter it would never do to make a mistake. We have an excellent case."

Anna Cemenallo, who keeps the house in which the prisoners lived, said last night that the three have lived on the top floor for about a year. Marie Agnes posed as the aunt of the young man and the young woman. All went out together, she said, about 10 o'clock every morning and returned about 5. The two women were always dressed like sisters of charity. They said that they were collecting money for an Italian church. They paid their rent regularly in advance. Every time they paid they said they were going to move, but they didn't move.

WE'RE GETTING MORE DIAMONDS And More Automobiles-Big Increase of Imports at This Port.

The Appraiser of the Port of New York reports that the total appraised value of imported merchandise in the fiscal year ended June 30, 1905, is $679,446,926, or an increase of $73,452,889.33 in comparison increase of $73,452,889.33 in comparison with transactions of the fiscal year immediately preceding.

The imports of diamonds and other preious stones were beyond any former year. the value being $33,223,164.69, an increase of more than $11,000,000 over 1904. Imports of uncut diamonds show that the new industry of diamond cutting in this country is fairly established. The total appraised is fairly established. The total appraised value of uncut stones imported in the last fiscal year is $10,280,642.23. Ten years ago the annual importations of such goods ag-gregated less than $500,000. That there is no decrease in the demand for automobiles is shown by the fact that 788 cars, of the total value of $3,000,000 approximately, were imported, compared with 435 cars imported in 1904.

EQUITABLE AFFAIRS REST. TOO. Those Concerned Taking It Easy Until After the Fourth.

Most of the persons having charge of Equitable affairs were away from their offices yesterday and there were no developments of any importance.

Caairman Paul Morton returned to this city from Washington in the morning, but he did not go down to the Equitable Building. He left town again last night, and it was said that he probably would not be at his office until after the Fourth.

Attorney-General Mayer also left town yesterday going into the country for a varget. Yesterday going into the country for a va-cation until next Wednesday, when he will go back to Albany and resume his preparan of the suits which he is to bring against Equitable officers and directors.

It was said yesterday that no other members of the Hyde underwriting syndicates have disgorged, but it was expected that the remaining members, Louis Fitzgerald, W. H. McIntyre and George H. Squire, would make restitution next week.

LIVE TOPICS ABOUT TOWN.

Part of the music furnished by the choice of a prominent Brooklyn church on a recen Sunday was not on the program. The extra part couldn't even be called sacred. The singers, clad in cap and gown, were piously intoning the final "Amens" of the service, when one of the women, anxio us to get out in a hurry, proceeded to get rid of her costume. She took one hatpin from her cap and stuck it in the seat behind her Then out came the other hatpin, and she jabbed it at the seat. It wouldn't jab, so she gave it an extra push. Then the fervent Amen" of the soprano voice by her side was turned to a profane "Ouch!" and the service ended with feminine titters mingling with the tones of the organ.

Skirts on stable boys when they are breaking a horse for a woman to ride is a custom as old as horse dealing. As a fact, the lad makes an impromptu skirt from a stable blanket or lap robe, the essential thing being that the end shall flap against the horse and accustom it to the drapery On upper Seventh avenue, and wherever saddle horses are exercised, it is a common sight, but always an odd one to the uninitiated, to see the boys riding in this masquerade attire.

"School commencements aren't what they used to be," declared a Brooklynite who insists that they did everything better years "Take the graduation exercises at the high school last week, for instance. Like most of the other parents, I turned out expecting to hear six or eight orations in which the affairs of nations are settled for good and all by the brightest boys in the class, but there was nothing of the kind. There were no essays, only an address by a member of the Board of Education and the valedictory by a member of the class. And the valedictorian wasn't the real thing either. He wasn't the best student; he got the honor by vote of his classmates, and told the truth and declared he was glad to get out of school. Who ever heard of such an admission at commencement? They wouldn't have stood for it when I was graduated."

One of the new hotels just opened to the public has an office staff of some ten men or more. In this lot there is not a single New Yorker. Every man engaged by the management comes from some other city, and most of them are from the West or South. The proprietor selected them with no other idea than to get the most efficient. Most of them when they began work here were as much strangers as the guests of the hotel. The management who guests of the hotel. The manager who hired them said he knew no reason why New Yorkers should not be successful hotel clerks, although the fact remained they

On the East Side the Star of Israel is a familiar sight, a six pointed star of two equilate al triangles interlaced. It marks every synagogue and is frequently displayed over the meeting places of various fraternities whose names begin with B'nai. It is part of the magical seal of Solomon that keeps the djinns safely corked up in bottles until some simple fisherman breaks seal and spell together. But it would have been far more familiar had it not been for the labor saving conceit of a woman. When the plan of the Stars and Stripes had been drafted by the Continental Congress the stars were of the six pointed sort. Mrs. Betsy Ross was called upon to be the first seamstress of the new upon to be the first seamstress of the new ensign. With charming feminine disre-gard for acts of Congress she told the com-mittee that she would sew in five pointed stars, and illustrated with a snip of her scissors that by folding the bunting she could cut each star of five points with a single cut and make them true.

The new tenor that Heinrich Conried has just engaged for the Metropolitan Opera House is Carl Burrian, a youthful Wagner singer, who won his first honors at Hamburg, where he sang for several years until he went to Dresden to take the first place in the company. He was invited to go to Munich to sing while Heinrich Knote is in this country, and he would have done so but for his contract to stay in Dresden for a certain number of years. Now he is free anywhere, so long as he does not take any regular contracts.

They got out of a northbound Broadway car and turned eastward down Eighteenth street, a good looking, prosperous couple, still young, but settling comfortably into early middle life. They might have come from Boston. With them was their son, voungster of eight or nine, who kept running ahead of his parents, with the air of an explorer. Every now and then he would call back over his shoulder some new marvel. He was about in the middle of the block between Madison and Fourth avenues when a low rumbling reached the child's ears. "Oh, papa," he shouted back delightedly. "I hear the subway!" A few steps further on, as an india rubber like smell issuing from a hole in front of him reached his nostri's, he added, "And oh, papa, I can smell it!"

No photograph shop at Coney Island is complete this year without an automobile. The establishments are so modest and apparently supplied with such limited capital it is incredible that they could have bought the machines shown in every tent and shack in which the pictures are taken. The photographers gaged the taste of the visitors to the island accurately, for every nine pictures out of ten show the subjects in a motor. The small price at which they can enjoy the experience even in a stationary vehicle makes the temptation irresistible.

These are strenuous nights for the Central Park boatmen. As early as 9:30 they begin to scour the lake to inform all young persons-or old, either, for that matterthat they must be in by 10:30. When that hour comes they are still busy chasing the boats out of secluded nooks. "It is cruel, but it is the law," said one tender hearted boatman the other night when he had chased the last wandering couple in.

"Hello" still continues to be the favo rite call among telephone users, according to the young man at a busy pay station.

"Once in a while," said he, "folks will answer with a 'Well.' or 'Yes, what is it?' when the bell rings. I had two chaps from the South recently using the wire. One of them said: 'Is it you for shuah?' His friend exclaimed: 'Wa-al, I'll be dog-

"These ten cent fares run into money very fast," remarked a conductor on a Coney Island open car. "I took in $120 on this car last Sunday, and the weight of the silver almost tired me out. I think about forty nickels make a pound. At all events, I had to give the driver $30 worth of silver to carry for me. The only kick I have coming is that the company should give an hour off, even on the rush days, for dinner. It's not fair to motorman or conductor to have to work so hard on snack meals."

GOT THE ORANGE, LOST SHIP.

ST. PAUL LEAVES UNCLE HENRY BEHIND WITH THE BABY,

While the Baby's Mother Salls Away With the Other Children-Uncle Henry and the Baby Follow On the Zeeland-Wireless Comfort for Mama on St. Paul.

A fine lot of oranges displayed on the stand of a Greek in West street near Fulton attracted two-year-old Jeanne Keck as her uncle, Henry Hugle, carried her across the street to the pier of the American liner St. Paul, bound for Southampton. Jeanne howled for an orange up to the very foot of the second cabin gangpiank. Uncle Henry's sister, Mrs. Keck, went aboar i the liner with her two other children and the tickets of all hands, including Uncle Henry. The wail of Jeanne went to the uncle's heart and he started back to get an orange.

Jeanne, as soon as her uncle announced the object of the return, shut off her tear valves and began laughing. Uncle Henry bought the biggest orange on the stand and started running back to the ship, which was about to move out. He was stopped at the gangplank with a demand, for his tickets. He said his sister, the mother of the baby in his arms, had them. He was pushed back, baby and all, and the St. Paul glided out of dock and down the bay.

Detective Leeson saw Uncle Henry flying about like a demented person, intercepted him and found out his trouble. He said he had repeatedly tried to explain to the men at the foot of the gangplank, but that they seemed to be mentally incompetent and that he finally had given up the job.

Leeson took Uncle Henry to the pie superintendent, who got him a berth aboard the Red Star liner Zeeland, which sailed for Dover and Antwerp half an hour after the St. Paul. Uncle Henry wondered at first how he would be able to take care of a two-year-old girl unassisted and without a change of linen, but he felt better when told that the little one would be cared for by a stewardes; aboard the Zeeland. He also learned that the Zeeland would pick up the St. Paul by wireless at sea and that Mrs. Keck would be informed that little Jeanne had got her orange and with Uncle Henry would reach Dover about two days after the St. Paul bad docked at

WIRE TAPPING CHARGE NOW

Against Strosnider, the "Capitalist," Who Toured Europe in an Auto.

When George Strosnider and George Thompson, who are accused of trying to swindle Dr. John A. Harris out of $7,500, were again arraigned in the Tombs police court yesterday, Magistrate McAvoy fixed the examination for Thursday and reduced Thompson's bail to $2,500. As he was about to fix bail for Strosnider, Detective Sergeant Frank Price jumped on the bridge and said:

"Your honor, before you fix bail for Strosnider, I would like to inform you that there is a second complaint against him y William T. Furness of 648 Broadway." "What's the complaint?" asked Magistrate McAvoy.

"Charged with swindling Mr. Furness out of $12,000 in a wire tapping game." Magistrate McAvoy left the bail in Strosnider's case at the original figure of $10,000. Strosnider, or, as he is registered in the Tombs, Snyder, was asked about his deal with Furness.

"All I can say now, "he replied, "is that there are two sides to this story and mine will be told later. One thing I will say now. I never met Dr. Harris abroad touring in an auto, and he's a squealer."

It was said by the detectives vesterday It was said by the detectives yesterday that the night before the men were caught in Dr. Harris's apartment at the Gains-borough, Strosnider lost all his available cash at faro in an uptown gambling house and was forced, in order to raise $7,500 to show Harris, to borrow $4,000 from a friend. Strosnider also pawned a number of rings for $3,500. The pawnticket is now in the hands of the police. Dr. Harris has attached the $7,500.

DISTILLING CO. DIRECTORS WIN. For a Second Time Stockholders' Suit for

Accounting is Dismissed. Supreme Court Justice Dowling sustained yesterday the demurrers interposed by the defendants to the suit of Edwin Blum against the directors of the Distilling Company of America, known better as the whisky trust, for an accounting of the proceeds of the sale of $10,480,000 preferred and $13,110,000 common stock. The action has been reading for some time and a previous to much the same effect was dismissed.
The defendants, who include Thomas F Ryan, Hugh J. Grant, Harry Payne Whitney and others, demurred on the ground that the allegations of the complaint did not constitute a valid cause of action. Justice Dowling upholds this view, but grants leave to Blum to amend his complaint so as to conform to the legal requirements. Blum alleges that the directors made a secret profit aggregating several millions out of the issue of stock to pay for the various distilleries acquired for the trust combi-

TUITION ONLY 820 A YEAR.

Charges at Carnegie Technological Schools Are Announced.

PITTSBURG, July 1 .- Director Arthur A. Hamerschlag of the Carnegie Technological Schools being erec ed here, to-day gave out the first intimation of requirements of students, their tuition rates, &c. The circular made public this evening is filled with surprises, one of which is the small amount of tuition which will be charged at the school of applied science, the department which will be first opened next October and of which the announcement is made to-day. The tuition will be but $20 a year for residents of Pittsburg and $30 a year for those outside of Pittsburg. The small tuition comes as a genuine surprise, as it had been circulated that the tuition would be up in the bundreds yearly in this $10,000,000 school. Director Hamerschleg in his circular to-night calls attention to the opening of the school of applied science, which will have courses for day students and also for night students. In part he says:

"The school of applied science provides courses of instruction in those studies which are essential to a technical education. The elements in the curriculum are

The elements in the curriculum are mathematics, physics, chemistry, drawing and shop work. Three year day courses in the school of applied science are offered to students desiring to pursue studies preparing them for service in any one of the following vocations: Architectural, civil, electical against ing foundary mechanical. trical enginee ing, foundry, mechanical or railway practise. All students, irrespective of the course they may select prior to entrance, must pursue the same studies during the first year; the course of instruction being designed to give a broad funda-mental knowledge of the principles under-lying the applied sciences. Specialized instruction, leading to a specific vocation will be offered only to those students who, in the first year, give satisfactory evidence of their capacity to pursue the more advanced studies outlined in the second and third years of the curriculum." Students must be at least 16 years old, and pass satisfactory examinations in at least three of the following subjects: English—ability to express thought in clear con-cise and accurate English; mathematics arithmetic and algebra as far as quad-ratics; science— elementary physics or chemistry; drawing—plane geometry or mechanical drawing. Examinations will be held in Pittsburg on October 14.

CITY BLIGHTS CROTON TOWNS. Dams to Supply Water to Replace Prosperous Villages.

KATONAH, N. Y., July 1 .- Residents of the Croton Valley in northern Westchester are gloomy over the news that three more picturesque villages are soon to be obliterated to meet the demand of New York city for water. The hamlets doomed are Croton Falls, Cross River and a part of the town of Somers.

town of Somers.

Houses, churches, shops and cemeteries are to be blotted out, leaving the bare land, which will be flooded, making two lakes, each about four miles long.

The first village to go will be Cross River, where the city has begun a dam to cost the control of the cost of $3,000,000. The dam will require not only the condemnation of the village, which has a population of 200, but the taking of seventy-eight farms containing 1,900 acres. One of the largest homesteads to be obliterated is that of the late George Green, who was a few years ago one of the most prominent exhibitors of the New York Horse Show.

At Croton Fals the city will wipe out the machine shop of George Juengst. The At Croten Fals the city will wipe cut the machine shop of George Juengst. The Juengst brothers operate an electric light plant and the villages of Croten Falls, Purdy's, Carmell and Brewsters will be left in darkness. Croten Falls is one of the busiest manufacturing centers of Westchester county. It has a population of about 5,000. The place was founded in Revolutionary times and was famous years. about 5,000. The place was founded in Revolutionary times and was famous years ago for its paper factories. One of its old landmarks is the home of Enoch Crosby, said to be the original of Ccoper's Spy. Nugent was received from Liverpool, Eng-Nugent was received from Liverpool. England, yesterday. He was $1 years old and had spent most of his sacerdotal career in the work of reclaiming homeless boys, somewhat similar to that inaugurated by the late Father Drumzoole in this city. Liverpool homored him at his golden jubilee by erecting a statue to him on a prominent site; all classes and creeds subscribing to the fund. He was for many years owner and director of the Catholic Times of Lindon. He was also the founder of the League of the Cross, one of the most successful total abstinence societies in Great Britain. Mgr. Nugent was a frequent, almost yearly, visitor to this country. He was a great friend of the Paulist Fathers of this city and of Archishop Ireland and usually spent much of his time with him when here. He came to this city last water with the famous Benedictine Abbot Doth Gasquet and after visiting the West was laid up with a severe rheumatic attack. He spent some time in Florida recuperating and then sailed for Liverpool on May 11. A fall on shipboard brought on a relapse and he was forced to go to a hospital as soon as he landed. He never regained his strength, and died there. ## IN SOCIETY.

The Newport season has been shortened considerably in the past few years. From the present outlook there will be a particularly lively season, opening as usual on Tuesday with Mrs. James P. Kernochan's annual Fourth of July reception, which will be attended by all of the cottage set now at the resort.

Mrs. Vanderbilt and Miss Gladys Vanderbilt will soon be at Newport. Mr. and Mrs. Twombley will be the only other members of the Vanderbilt family in cottages there with the exception of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Burden, Jr. Mr. and Mrs. William A. M. Burden will be the guests for the season of Mrs. Burden's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Twombley.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Douglas Sloane, who arrived home from Europe last Wednesday will be at Lenox for the summer, as usual and their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William B. Osgood Field, will be with them, as will Mr. and Mrs. John H. Hammond, for a part of the season. Mr. and Mrs William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., will make visits at Newport to Mr. Vanderbilt's mother, Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont, now located ther; with Mr. Belmont, an to Mrs. Vanderbilt's sister, Mrs. Hermann Oelrichs, who is still abroad with her son, but who intends to spend August at the resort.

There is a general impression that the engagement of Miss Gladys Vanderbilt and Robert W. Goelet, New York's richest young bachelor, is likely to be announced soon. Mrs. Vanderbilt and her daughter, Miss Vanderbilt, have been the guests of Mrs. Robert Goelet on her yacht Nahma since reaching the other side and the party has included Robert W. Goelet and Francis Riggs, all of whom were at the dinner given by Mrs. Goelet recently to the German by Mrs. Emperor.

Among those along the line of the Hudson who will celebrate the Fourth will be Mr. and Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, who have their big house at Garrisons filled with guests. They will not go to Crossways, their Newport place, until to-morrow week, or perhaps not until July 12.

Mrs. W. Rhinelander Stewart, who with her daughter. Miss Anita Stewart, and her guest, Miss Grace Chapin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Chapin, will be among the wedding guests of Mrs. Flora Bigelow Dodge and the Hon. Lionel George Guest of England, next Thursday, July 6, at the tride's home, Wookiye Tipi, Sioux Falls, S. D., will be very comfortably located during their stay at the place. They will have as their guests this summer Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Van Rensselaer Thayer, Mrs. John R. Livermore and Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Brooks. Mrs. Reginald Brooks, who was Miss Phyllis Langhorne, is a sister of Mrs. Langhorne-Shaw, who is soon to marry Lord Revelstoke.

Mrs. Douglas Robinson and her grand daughter, Miss Worlythe Whitmore, whose parents live in England, is at her fine country establishment, Henderson House, which is some miles away from Richfield Springs. Mrs. Rolinson will receive visits this summer from her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Robinson, Jr., Miss Corinne Robinson and Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Douglas Robinson.

C. Wentworth Dilke, son of Sir Charles W. Dilke, who has been staying here of late at the Holland House, will sail this week for home. He brought among other letters one to a relative, Mrs. George Dilks. The one to a relative, Mrs. George Dilks. The family is the same, though in some way the spelling has been altered by the American branch. Mrs. Dilks gave a dinner on Wednesday night for her British relative. She and her granddaughter, Miss Robinson, will go next Thursday with Mr. and Mrs. Le Barbier to some resort on the Massachusetts coast. Mr. Dilke is passing Sunday at Tuxedo with friends.

Judge and Mrs. Francis M. Scott will sail for Europe next Saturday, July 8, and will be accompanied by their daughter, Miss Margaret Simes Scott, and Miss Betty Collamore, daughter of Mrs. Henry Bischoff, Jr., who has been the guest of Miss Eliza-beth Lamont in Millbrook, N. Y. They will all visit Mr. and Mrs. William Henry Tew at their new home in Glasgow, Scotland. Both girls were attendants at the wedding of Mrs. Tew, then Miss Eleanor Atwood Scott, on May 26.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. C. Taylor, who arrived last week from Europe, will pass the summer at their Newport cottage. Mr. Taylor's son-in-law, Count della Gheres-desca, is now in Luness in Paris. Countess Gheresdesca was a guest in the spring on Mr. and Mrs. Taylor's yacht in the Med-terranean. Mr. and Mrs. Moses Taylor will do no entertaining this season, owing the recent death of Ars. Cards are here for the wedding to-morrow in Portland, Me., of Miss Florence McMullan and Lieut. John W. Gulick of the Artillery. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James McMullan of Portland, and her mother comes of the old Albany family of Von Benthuysens.

Major-Gen. and Mrs. Gillespie, who sail for Europe Tuesday on the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, will be away for twelve months or so. They will go to Egypt next winter. Mr. and Mrs. John C. Juhring of 311 West Eighty-sixth street will sail on the same steamer, as will Mr. and Mrs. Arthur T. Sullivan of 58! Fifth avenue and their sons, Arthur Bull and Leonard Sullivan.

Mr. and Mrs. Forsyth Wickes, after passing the first two months of their married life at Tuxedo, sailed on Wednesday for Europe. When they return they will take possession of the residence at Madison avenue and Thirty-seventh street, left to Mrs. Wickes by her aunt, the late Mrs. William B. Ogden, Mrs. Wickes, who was Miss Marian Hayen, was the richest bride of the season. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George G. Haven, are at Lenox. They will go later to their Newport cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Harriman, who were the guests last week of Mr. and Mrs. W. Seward Webb, will pass the Fourth at Newport. This will be the first season that the Harrimans have had a cottage at Newport. Mrs. Harriman's brother, Francis C. Carley, and his fiancée, Miss Irene King, will be among her guests this season.

Miss Kate de Forrest Prentice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. P. Prentice, of 53 East Fifty-fifth street, who sails for Europe on the Oceanic on Wednesday, will join Mrs. George R. Sheldon and Miss Gertrude Sheldon for an automobile trip through France. Mr. and Mrs. John Alexande Rutherfurd, who also sail on the Oceanic will make an automobile trip through France, Switzerland and Italy.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Du Vivier sailed for France last Wednesday. Since their wedding on June 7 they have taken a preliminary wedding journey. They will now visit their relatives in France. Mrs. Du Vivier is a daughter of the late Constant Delmonico. Mr. Du Vivier is a great grand-son of Mrs. Charles Brugi re. He is the youngest son of the late Charles Du Vivier.

Last summer Mr. and Mrs. Reginald C. Vanderbilt contributed to the Newport gaiety by giving a big dinner dance or two at Sandy Point Farm. Now they are to have an amateur circus performance, with the new riding ring as the scene. Neither Mr. and Mrs. Reginald C. Vanderbilt nor Mr. and Mrs. Alfred G. Vanderbilt are likely to remain long at Newport, as they will go the round of the summer horse shows.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Walsh and Miss Evelyn Walsh, who are expected to entertain at Beaulieu, are the newcomers of interest at Newport. That they have rented the house implies the absence of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, who were among the dancers at the ball given by Prince Henry at Kiel. Mr. and Mrs. Elbridge T. Gerry and family, who have heretofore entertained on their yacht, Electra, are absentees and do not return until September. They are in Switzer-land just now. Mr. and Mrs. Perry Belmont are expected to give some of smartest functions of the late season.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Goelet are among the newcomers who have cottages at Newport. Last summer after their matriage they went aboard. Two seasons ago, when Mrs. Goelet was at the resort as Miss Elsie Whelen, she was the guest of Mrs. John R. Drexel. Mrs. Goelet's mother will not be at Newport early in the season, if at all.

There is the usual talk that the Duchess of Marlborough is goming over. When the Duchess paid her one visit to this side some four or five summers since, subsequent to her marriage, it had a decided effect on the gaiety of the resort. She stayed at Belcourt with her stepfather and pother, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont.

Mr. and Mrs. Levi P. Morton will pass the summer at their camp in the Adirondacks. Their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William Corcoran Eustis. will be with them, as will also Mme.
